THINK OF YOUR RECOVERY AS A POSITIVE JOURNEY YOU’RE TAKING TO ENRICH YOUR LIFE AND HEALTH. After surgery, it’s important to find ways to think positively and to feel as good as you can. Studies show that some patients struggle with depression after a major surgery like heart surgery, and depression can seriously slow down recovery.

DON’T WORRY about depression; DO WHAT YOU CAN TO PREVENT IT and TELL YOUR DOCTOR if you notice symptoms or feel that you are really struggling. ✓ Write down your progress. It helps you to take time to notice the good things that are happening. If you write them down, you will push yourself to take note of what’s going right.

You may feel groggy and confused, especially if you’re attached to unfamiliar IVs and machines. BUT pay attention to what’s going on to help you get better!

Do your best to follow post-op instruction — It’s a step toward your full recovery.

Enjoy your progress even if you’re just moving from lying down to sitting up. That’s progress!

Even if it hurts, celebrate those first steps. Even just walking to the bathroom is an important part of moving forward.

Be gentle with yourself. It may still be a bit awkward, but during this phase, you may be able to shower, get dressed, remove machines and IVs.

All of these small moments are steps toward feeling more like yourself again. It can be easy to focus on how you’re not better yet, but you’ll do yourself and your recovery a favor if you do your best to reframe it toward the positive.

By the end of day three, you will likely be able to plan to do some enjoyable activities:

☑ choose some movies you’ll enjoy
☑ invite a friend to come by
☑ read a good book
☑ or play a board game with your child

[ Continued on page 2 ]

MY MOMENT OF ACHIEVEMENT ON MY FIRST DAY:

I am thankful for:

ENJOYABLE MOMENT:

I am grateful for:

© 2016 American Heart Association
You will likely notice significant progress during this time. Sutures may be removed, mobility will be encouraged.

This is an important time to be gentle with yourself, remembering you’re still recovering AND to focus on how you’re improving at a nice pace.

This period and the next are times when some people experience post-surgery depression so take care of your emotional journey toward recovery, too. Allow yourself to enjoy your progress as much as you can.

Are you setting some small, achievable goals for yourself? Some people expect to feel recovered by this time, but full recovery will take a while.

You will still need plenty of rest, but you’ll also want to gradually ease back into a more active life. Plan some very gentle activities you enjoy, or start going on very short strolls.

By the end of week three, you may be able to start easing back into a predictable schedule.

- Plan gentle outings with friends
- Enjoy a meal out with the family
- Walk around the block if you’re cleared for mild exercise
- Before long, you’ll likely start cardiac rehab

Remember, ease back into life and notice each little milestone. Every step forward is progress!

What improvements are you noticing?

What seems to be getting easier or less painful in the last few days?

What have you been able to enjoy about your recovery?

Enjoyable moment: __________________________

I am grateful for: _____________________________

Heart.org/heartvalves

© 2016 American Heart Association