

COVID-19 – We Can Help

CPR Training in the Age of Social Distancing

Online Learning | Self-Guided Skills | BLS-ACLS-PALS Credentialing

Stay safe, competent and prepared

A No-Obligation CPR Program Supporting Social Distancing

We stand ready to support your organization during this exceptional time with a complementary rapid deployment program for maintaining credentials and life-saving CPR competence within current safety protocols during COVID-19.

- Online learning, self-guided skills and an American Heart Association eCard delivered in one program.
- Individual, self-guided learning avoids the close proximity of a classroom and keeps providers prepared and at the point of care.

We Can Help

- One fully-assembled and configured skills station is provided. The program will stand alone without requiring network or LMS integration.
- Complementary HeartCode Complete licenses are included: 50 BLS, 15 ACLS, 15 PALS
- Learners complete the online portion on any computer, followed by the self-guided skill session using the skills station.
- Learners and administrators access their AHA eCards through the RQI® 1Stop learning platform and have the ability to export or print in hard copy.

How We Support Your Participation

- Virtual, condensed administrator training and assistance with receiving the skills station are provided.
- Dedicated HeartCode Administrator support for the duration of the program.
- A skills station reference guide located at the station for learner access and resources available online to support successful completion of online learning and skills assignments.

Our Offer

- Implementation fees are waived and no purchase is required. RQI Partners will only recover costs for licenses consumed above the initial complementary offering.
- No P.O. or contract – a signed Acknowledgement of Participation is the only paperwork required.
- The initial term of the program is 90 days. Should your organization choose to continue with self-directed learning, RQI Partners will work with you to plan the program and timing best suited to your needs.
