

STEPHANIE M. MOHL

Stephanie Mohl joined the American Heart Association/American Stroke Association's Office of Federal Advocacy in October, 2005, and she now works as a Senior Government Relations Advisor. Her federal advocacy responsibilities include expanding coverage and access, improving the treatment and prevention of stroke, and the elimination of cardiovascular disease disparities in women and minorities. She is the American Heart Association's lead lobbyist in Washington, DC on health care reform and coordinates the AHA's health reform implementation activities. She serves on behalf of the Heart Association as a Consumer Representative to the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, which is playing a key role in implementation of health insurance reform.

Prior to joining the Heart Association, Stephanie worked as a senior legislative assistant in the office of former U.S. Senator Byron Dorgan (D-North Dakota) for nearly 12 years. Her legislative portfolio for Senator Dorgan included health care, education, and human services, with a particular emphasis on prescription drug and rural health issues. In April, 2005, she was named one of National Journal's "Hill 100" for her work on prescription drug issues for Congress. Stephanie graduated magna cum laude from Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem, N.C. in 1993 with a bachelor's degree in political science and a concentration in journalism.
